"One of the best things about a small school is that you are given the opportunity to stand out and stand up for what you believe in."

"I love being involved in lots of clubs on campus, hopefully I will be able to make a difference somewhere."

"Really, I'm not sure what I want to do in the future. I definetely want to go to graduate school . . . maybe study law or further my politics degree. Who knows! Whatever I end up doing, I just hope to always be learning more about myself, and growing closer to the Lord."

FUN FACTS ABOUT YOUR HOME:

✤Did you know that McKean is the largest residential hall on campus with 115 rooms while ward has 110 and Elizabeth a mere 77.

✤The average fraternity house has 22 rooms and the average sorority house has 19 rooms.

Rhoni & Robbie Barton, and Nikki White share some time together in an on-campus room. Living on campus gives many the opportunity to be close by friends, and in this case, family.

Michelle Esfahani takes advantage of the small amount of space she has in her dorm room by lofting her bed.

In some cases, dorm life can become a bit distracting. Mims Rouse realizes that life in Gale Hall can sometimes be hectic and disrupting, and therefore must seek refuge in the library where he can find a stronger focusing environment.

Environment
Lifestyles of the Student Body

By Kelly Rhodes

Through the years, dorm rooms seem to become students' home away from home. Most students choose to live on campus, where a variety of housing arrangements makes each dorm unique. Others opt to live off campus in houses or apartments. A few Orlando area natives even live at home, taking advantage of free laundry and home cooked meals.

Those who live on campus can choose between living in the larger dorms, like McKean or Ward, or specialty housing including; fraternity and sorority houses, Pinehurst, and R.O.C. Two new additions to this list are Harmon and Pflug halls for those with an interest in the theater.

"I like living in my sorority house over the big dorms because it is a lot more laid back and fun," said Lindsay Koch.

Kappa Alpha Theta, one of the sororities on campus, sits among a cluster of greek houses.

One of the many nearby houses rented by students was commonly referred to as the "Yellow House".

Pflug Hall is a dormitory that once was a private residence. It now serves as special interest housing for theater majors.

Some find living on campus too restrictive and move to apartments or houses. Worries about Resident Assistants and Campus Safety are gone, the new troubles arrive with maintenance and bills. One advantage to living off campus is the ability to throw a party whenever you please, as long as the Winter Park Police Department is not invited.

"Living off campus gives me the freedom of more space and my own garage. I can even have my own dogs," jokes Bart Mercer.

All in all, your lifestyle is shaped by your living environment, whether it be study habits, partying, or hanging out. All options have their own advantages and disadvantages, so you must choose wisely to create your own happiness.

Leisure SPORTS ON CAMPUS

By Soluna Gandhi

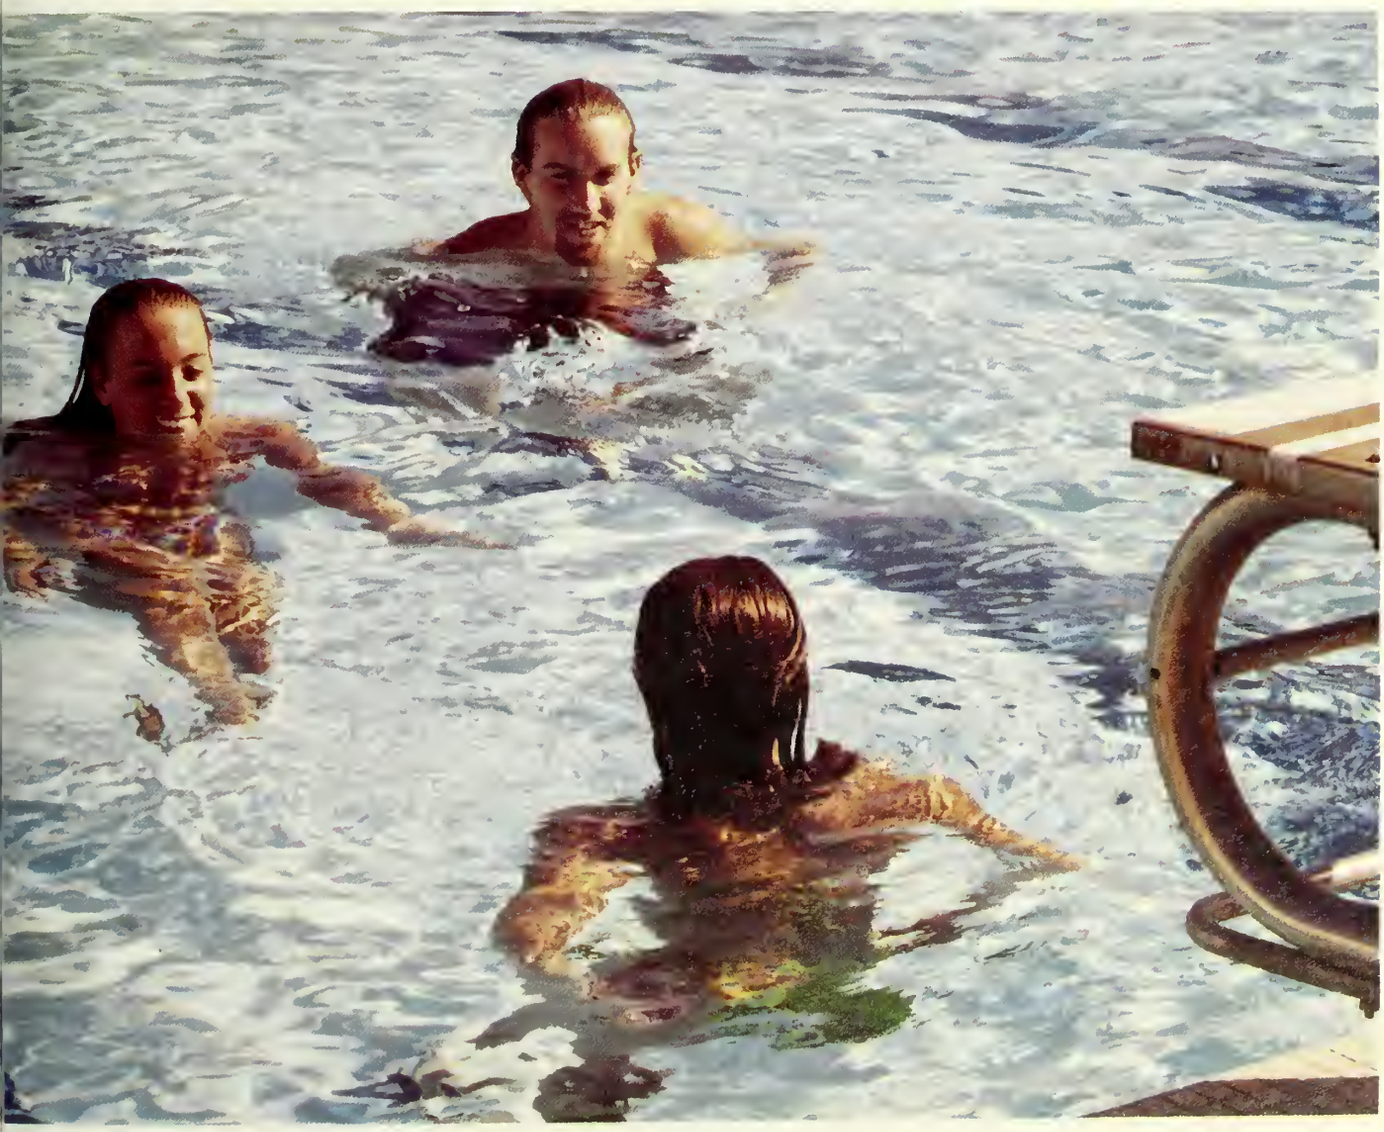
You see them playing football in front of Ward Hall, spiking voleyballs on the courts, tossing frisbees on Mills lawn or hitting balls on the tennis courts. These people are not doing these activities because they are in clubs or organizations, they are doing them because they have a little extra time on their hands to enjoy the sports and weather on campus. Many students have found particular interests in the leisure sports they are involved with. They do not participate because they keep the competition games and casual, and schools. They process, make it a light-hearted students also participate through this intramural lot of fun. The teams within the school compete against each other for the victory title. There are also volleyball tournanment ongoing throughout the year. So if you are looking for a sport or game to play for fun, simply walk outside and it is all around.

These women are among the many students who take advantage of their freetime by gathering a few rays. The school's lake front location gives students an excellent oppurtunity for boat rides and skiing.

Carrie Oliver, Liz Ramirez, Kim Oram-Smith, and Tory Hayes spend some of their extra time at the bowling ally.

Lacrosse is a popular pasttime at school. This freshman was among the many who found the sport both challenging and fun.

Student finds bicycling not only to be a leisure activity, but also a means to keep in shape. Many students choose to participate in activities to remain healthy.



The eight lane olympic size Alfond Pool offers a refreshing relief from the hot sun. Many students used the facilities to relax in the everlasting Florida summertime weather.

Regardless of the Surgeon General's warning about lung cancer, many students chose to continue smoking. This was a widespread habit on the campus.

Some students would not label themselves as smokers. A social smoker, Terri Felton tried Cloves while she was out one night.

By Luis Hernandez

Marlboros, Camels, Newports. Do these words sound familiar? They should since they are the most popular brands of cigarettes smoked on campus. The use of tobacco products varies from student to student. Some are simply social smokers, while many others buy them by the carton. Both groups of students ignore all health risks that tobacco products cause.

The constant builkdup of cigarette butts in public ashtrays and walkways just illustrates that smoking is big on campus. Although students who reside on campus are prohibited from smoking in their rooms due to recent state and federal clean air regulations, many disregard the ban.

Cigars have also found recent popularity on campus. While it is not as wide spread as cigarette smoking, this new fad continues to grow. Chewable tobacco is also something used by the males on campus, regardless of the deadly and disfiguring risk it can cause. The use of any one of these products has been proven to cause damage. Because of this, the government warnings should not be taken lightly.

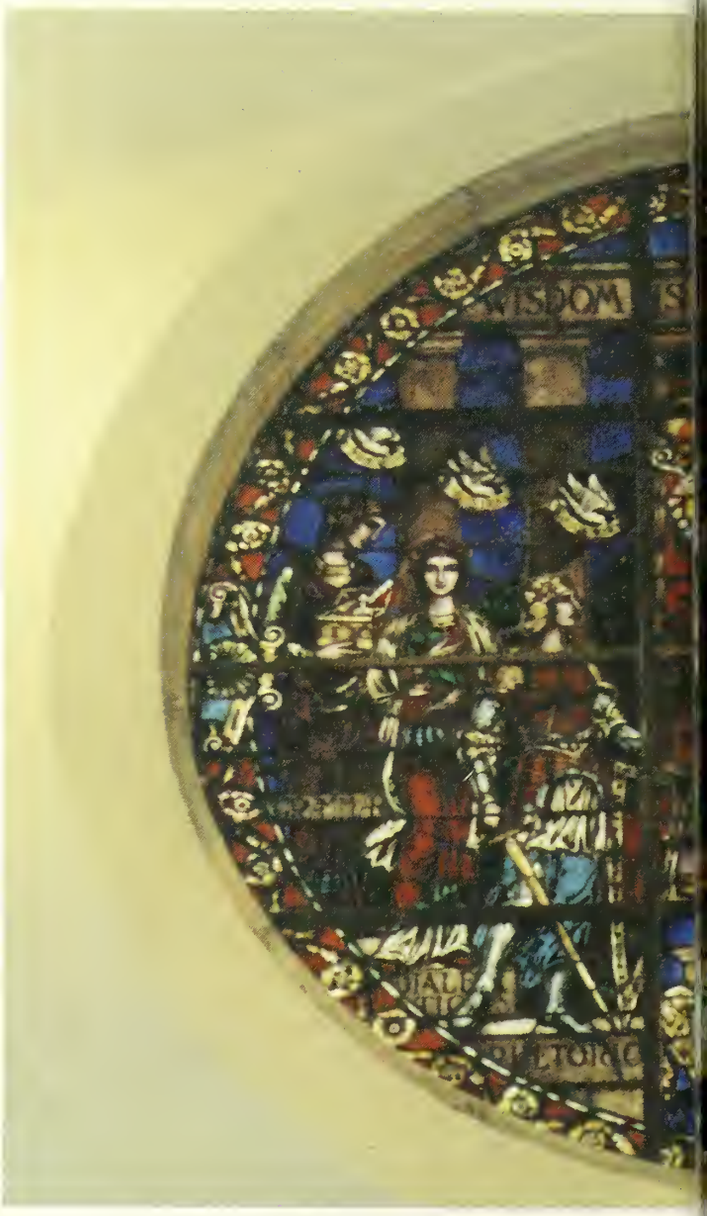
Many Names Same Spirit

By Allison Mains



The sun rises casting a golden glow on the sleeping campus on Sunday morning...but despite appearances, the campus does not lay entirely quiet. From Knowles Memorial Chapel rise voices singing hymns, high heeled shoes click across the brick walk ways on their way to off campus churches, and others stir in their rooms preparing for a day of worship.

Religion is alive and well on and off campus, and Sundays are not the only sacred days here. Rollins is home to many religious groups of all sorts. Christians, Jews, Muslims, Buddhists, and people of various faiths reflect the many facets of religious life.

Campus Crusade for Christ, Intervarsity, the Jewish Student League, various prayer groups, and a Muslim group meet weekly on campus. There are, however, other faiths practiced by students which are not represented by a club. To fit their needs, there are groups located in the Winter Park and Orlando area.

Many students strive to identify themselves and clarify their values through a myriad of different belief systems. The traditional, conservative Christian can be found amongst the busy bustle between classes, and the atheist may be standing only a few feet away. Just as in every other area of life on campus, a close up look at religion can reveal more variety than expected.

The Bahai faith, which originated in Iran has spread to almost every continent. On a recent trip to Uganda, junior Lua Rudolph took this photo of a Bahia temple.

I feel a lot of students are lacking a spiritual component in their lives. Spiritual growth is just as important as physical and mental maturation. I honestly believe a lot of people here would be happier in their day to day lives if they develoiped a conversational relationship with God.

Images of stained glass windows help many to evoke an image of spirituality. This photograph shows the dominant stained glass window in the Knowles Memorial Chapel, which to many serves as the spiritual center of their lives whenever they're on campus.

This Armenian Orthodox cross hangs in the room of senior Isabel Kalpakian. The Armenian church, which is the oldest Christian sects in the world, is also one of the least known branches of Christianity.

Rollins gives numerous opportunities to experience God's love. I am joyful to stand for Jesus Christ and to serve as His witness.

AFTER HOURS

Campus and Orlando Diversions

By Soluna Gandi

From going to the movies, kicking back and renting a video, or driving to the beach to catch some waves and sun, students can enjoy Florida's "good life." Those looking for more action can hop over to a club, grab a ride to Church Street, have a couple cocktails at a party, jet over to U.C.F. or dance the night away at Pleasure Island.

Freshman, Danielle Friedman says "There is always something to do in the Orlando area. I can go out every night of the week to a different club and still have a great time. I love going to Pleasure Island because there are so many different clubs in one place, and they all have different kinds of bands. It's great to have everything in one place. Then if I get tired of going out dancing, there are plenty of things I can do and relax at the same time."

Christine Ng-A-Fook spends her evening reading the latest news in the warm and cozy Phi Mu lounge.

Mairi, Alex, Beth, Beatrice, and Jana prepare for a night at Church Street Station.

Many others feel the same about Orlando. Not only is there things to do in the city, but the campus offers many activities for everyone to enjoy. The Down Under has an air-hockey table, pool tables, and a large screen to watch movies or TV. Many dorms hold special programs for their residents. Finally there are always those crazy fraternity parties to enjoy and meet new people. Whatever the pleasure, everyone can find happiness at night on campus or in Central Florida.

NOT SO MUCH FUN IN THE SUN.

by Luis Hernandez

The warmth of the Florida sun is one of the many benefits students on campus enjoy. It also attracts students to take advantage of the sun's rays whenever they want to develop a tan. On a hot sunny day, one is sure to find several students bathing by the Alfond poolside, catching some rays. Yet sunbathing has its negative aspects, especially during a time when people are emphasizing the use of sunblock to prevent skin cancer from developing.

Skin cancer, which is largely caused by the sun's ultraviolet rays, is on the rise in the United States and other countries where people flock to the beach on a regular basis. Especially in the South, where weather is intensely warm, the fear of skin cancer has caused many sun block companies to see their sales soar. Whether its Coppertone or Hawaiian Tropic, people are using all brands of sun block in every form for protection.

Sunglasses are also important necessity to have in Central Florida. It is very important that one also protects their vision from the sun's ultraviolet rays. Aside from sun block, one will find many students on campus wearing protective eyewear.

With the depletion of the earth's ozone layer, one will find an increasing number of people becoming more conscious to the health risks in sun bathing. It is recommended that those who spend hours sunbathing each week visit a dermatologist at least twice a year for checkups. It is also important that sunbathers become aware of the sun's dehydrating power, and nourish their bodies with liquids.

The rising risks of skin cancer should not scare us away from the outdoors, only raise our concern for protection. Although the planet's atmosphere is not as it was a century ago, the sun will continue to be present, providing us with the warmth and light that Florida is famous for.

These three students take advantage of the warm Florida sun and the cool lake breeze while trying to improve their tans.

John Smith and Mike Nelson take time off from their busy schedules to catch some rays by the pool.

On a nice day, the bleachers are filled with students trying to get some sun between classes. Some brought homework and other reading materials to try to use their time wisely.

Use & Abuse

What are the consequences?

By Luis Hernandez

The use of illegal narcotics is something that occurs on every college campus in the United States, even here at our school. While it is not known how many students use and experiment with drugs, it is something that has brought greater concern from many branches of the faculty. A new drug policy was enforced this year bringing harsher consequences to students charged with possesion of drugs. Many students believe that drugs such as pot are actually less harmful than alcohol and should be legalized. Besides the use of drugs, alcohol consumption is something that has made this college notorious. In a recent poll held by the Princeton Review, a college research company, we ranked as one of the top 25 schools in the United States in beer consumption. On any single night, you do not have to look far to find a party in the making. "We are in college and we drink a lot. So what? Most of us will never drink like this after we graduate. Have fun while we can," said Angela Higgs. Beer is not the only form of alcohol on campus. Hard liquor, such as rum, vodka, whiskey, and gin are some of the most consumed forms of alcohol.

Some students know the consequences of drinking underage, while others discover them the hard way. Arrests took place often for purchasing and consuming alcohol underage and for fake ID's.

It has become the task of the Wellness Outreach program to educate and inform students about the risks of drugs and alcohol abuse. With such recent events as the "mocktails" festival held in the fall, where students created non-alcoholic drinks for competition, the Wellness Outreach program has managed to provide students support infomation in getting over alcoholism and drug abuse.

Matt Gabriel and Kit Gray get a little mushy after having a few too many drinks.

Alan O'Neil gets excited when the camera catches him with a bottle of beer at a party. Drinking went on a lot on the campus.

Brian Harper is showing the effects of too much alcohol to his date, Lee West. Unfortunately, he missed out on Santa's appearance at the formal.

Vanessa Garay, Abby Gresko, Julia Jerome, and Eileen Fernandez know that responsible drinking is something that must be enforced by everyone, especially when going out in town in a chauffered limosine.

Making Connections

The words E-mail, "VAX",and Internet have become increasingly more popular around our campus. Some of us still do not know what they mean, how to get acess to them, or even what they do. The VAX is the micro-mainframe that is used as a gateway to the Internet. Throught the terms VAX and Internet are frequently used interchangeably, they are not really the same thing: When connecting to the VAX you are reaching the academic computer. When connecting to the Internet (using e-mail, etc.), you should already be connected to the VAX and now are going beyond it--out into the world.

When you decide that you are ready to enter the world of Internet, you can get a free account through the school--these accounts are free to all students, faculty and staff. Once you have your account, you can use one of the 44 computers in the Bush Lab to e-mail your friends on or off campus.

David Martino and Gus Abbott enjoy good quality time and intellectual dinner conversations while dining at Beans. The cafeteria was usually filled during the day with people eating and socializing.

By Ashley Stearns and Kimberly Stowers

They call it Rose Skillman Hall, we just call it "Beans". The friendly staff and variety of food have made it a popular hangout for students to dine in, grab a snack, or even sit and chat.

In serving so many customers there is always questions of satisfaction. Many students happily feast among the entrees provided, while others scrounge around searching for an end to their hunger. "I have never seen so many strange combinations kids put together to find a good meal. I wonder how much salt and barbeque sauce this place goes through a week," jokes Josh Roth.

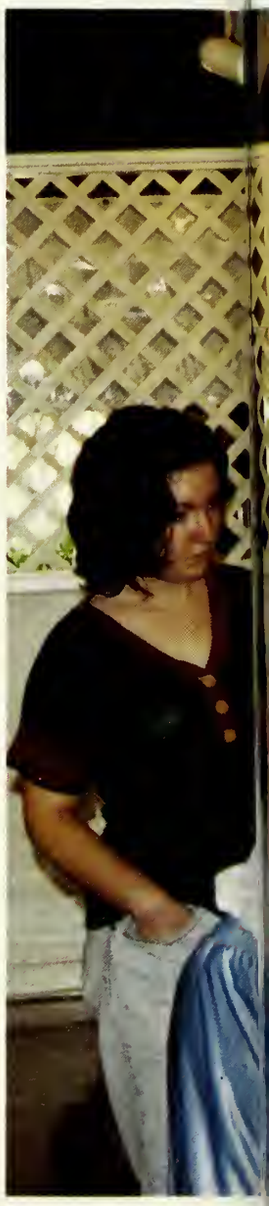
Some students prefer to dine at Beans, while others favor the Student Center grill, not to mention the newly constructed Sub Connection. Both offer a change of pace from the standard cafeteria style dining. In addition, outside eating is popular at the Mary Jean Mitchell Green Plaza.

Conveniently located below the Student Center is The Down Under, which provides students with entertainment possibilities and great snacks. Pizza is the mainstay, but many prefer the sundaes and coffees.

From Cornell Cafe to the C-Store, the food provided is rated higher than most other school's. Students have many options to choose from around campus. For those unsatisfied, we can only direct you towards the vast amounts of restaurants located within the area.

So the question must be asked: Is there any truth to the popular poem?

"Yesterday's mashed potatoes are today's shepherd's pie, today's vegetables will be tomorrow's stir fry."



Heather Haskett and LaToya Campbell approaches the meal aisle greated by a friendly staff member eager to help her with her choice.

Though more students prefer Coke, students such as Jeanmarie Esposito, enjoy the carbonated, yet syrupy beverages that are dispensed by the soda fountains at Beans.

The Mary Jean Mitchell Green Plaza offers students the opportunity to dine and converse in a pleasant outdoor environment. On sunny afternoons, the plaza was packed.

WHETHER IT IS AN INCURABLE VIRUS OR A BACTERIAL INFECTION, AROUND 12 MILLION AMERICANS WILL PICK UP A SEXUALLY TRANSMITTED DISEASE THIS YEAR.

1. Talk to your partner about your intent to use condoms before arousal.
2. Use only latex condoms making sure thay are labeled.
3. Buy fresh condoms and store them properly.

DOING IT safety first RIGHT

By Iara Peng

No person who is sexually active, whether he/she is married or single, black or white, rich or poor, heterosexual or homosexual, young or old, is immune from the risk of obtaining an STD. Public health officials estimate that at least one in four, and perhaps as many as one in two Americans will contract an STD at some point in their lives. Catching even the most treatable STD's can be worrisome because if you've been in the position to pick up a "minor" STD, you've also been at risk for the deadliest of them all--AIDS. Although AIDS and other STD's can be prevented, a combination of social trends continue to fuel their growth. People are having sex at younger ages, being sexually active during their single years, getting married later in life, and divorcing more often. The result is that an increasing number of people are having sex with more partners, which raises their chances of encountering someone who is infected with an STD. In addition, studies show that most people with multiple partners do not use condoms consistenly, even though condoms can substantially reduce the risk of infection.

Holly Fortier & Andy Adler share a relationship that goes beyond friendship.

Sharon Stokely proudly displays her engagement ring, which serves as a symbol of the commitment she has recently made with her fiance.

Fraternity brothers, Ian Garlic and Greg Romagnoli bond by joking around late night at Sig Ep.

But, just how safe are condoms? Certainly not as safe as abstaining from sex or staying with one faithful, uninfected lover. Condoms are not 100% fail-safe. Pregnancy rates among couples using condoms are between 10 and 15 percent. Condom failure is common due to human error as well as product defects. What do students have to say about relationships and sex here on campus?

- "I think the only safe sex is not to have sex before marriage. I think it is safest because you do not have to worry about HIV viruses and you can have a committed marriage in the future."
- "I think sex in the middle of campus would be great!"
- "It's o.k. to have sex in an established relationship, but those peole who choose to hook up on Friday nights are just selling themselves short--they are having empty sex."
- "People can do what they want as long as they are safe."

Some students are deciding to abstain from sex until marriage. Others have decided that sexually active relationships are right for them, and some believe sex is healthy for a relationship. If you choose to have sex...be safe.

travel OH THE PLACES YOU'LL GO....

By Luis Hernandez

Even though the federal shutdown of 1995-96 has prevented many people from being issued passports, there is nothing that can keep students from traveling the globe. Whether it be studying abroad for a semester or a simple road trip to the nearest beach, students love to travel. In January, students and faculty devote themselves to many different study abroad experiances, ranging from Marine Biology in Barbados to building health centers in Central America. Studying abroad for a semester in one of the school's three continuing programs in Australia, Mexico, and Spain were very popular. Spring break also allowed students to travel abroad and throughout the United States. Besides the madness that occurs every year in major spring break cities such as Daytona Beach and Fort Lauderdale, Key West, some students opted for alternative destinations outside the country. The Bahamas, Cancun, Aruba, and Jamaica attracted many students on a fixed budget, and it also allowed many to visit exotic locales that are so close to Florida. Several students decided to headed west to major skiing resorts in Colorado, California, and Nevada. Despite the many hours spent on the road and aboard airplanes and cruise ships, many students feel that traveling has enabled them to experience the world upclose and at hand.

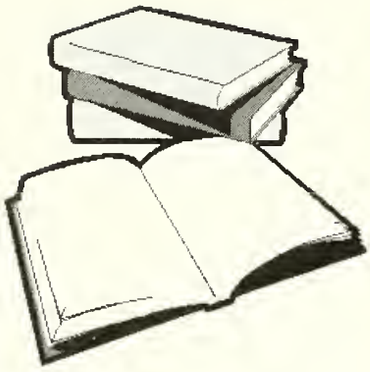
Making the Grade



Anita Treohan is surprised that the camera has caught her in the act of studying while watching television at McKean TV lounge.

By Luis Hernandez

Studying is an important necessity in order to reach academic success in college. Acquiring academic knowledge is the prime reason students enroll in a college or university. Studying doesn't take away the fun from college, it broadens it.

On an average day one is sure to find students studying in various places throughout campus. Whether if it is the Olin Library at midnight, or on a bench outside Orlando Hall students are actively persuing their academic interests.

Even the shortest gap between classes is an excellent time to study for an exam, quiz, or catch up on some readings. At the Cornell Social Sciences Center, many students use the time gaps between classes to do some last minute studying for upcoming exams and quizzes. Even during lunch, you can students dining and studying at the same time.

The ultimate recognitions for earning excellent or good grades during a semester is the President's and Dean's list, which recognizes studentswho have managed to "make the grade". Studying alllows one to open new worlds, and without good grades students will find it difficult to remain in school. Even if you're not a bookworm, if you take time to study you'll see that it will pay off at the end, especially when you are at your graduation ceremony.

THEATER AT ROLLIN

By Luis Hernandez

Theater has always been a major form of artistic expression on campus. From the Annie Russell Theater to the small and almost unknown Fred Stone Theater, students and faculty have produced many productions throug out the years. Over the years, the Theatre Arts department has produced many famus alumni who have appeared both on Broadway and on film. This year was an interesting and memorable year for the Theatre department. The opening of the Winnie Marden Smith Cos- tume Shop helped provided the department with a storage place for costumes used in productions. The 75th season of the Annie Russell Theater began with Cabaret, which dealt with a burlesque show in Berlin during World War II. This production was fol- lowed by other productions in- cluding The Musical Comedy Murders of 1940, Winterfest, Orpheus Descending, and Lady from Maxine. These productions and many countless others have made the Theatre Arts department one of the nation's top 25 theater programs in the coun- try according to the Princetown Review. Now that's something to talk about!

If you were to walk up and down Park Avenue, you would be sure to find many students working in the boutiques and restaurants that have made that street famous. Other students prefer to work at local theme parks such as Disney World, Sea World, and Universal Studios whenever they have time. While it is difficult to catch up with rising living costs and balancing studies at the same time, many students find that working off campus helps them to survive economically during the year. While some may think that working will take away from the fun that the college has to offer, others see working as the only way to survive financially in today's modern society.

CHECK IT OUT

By Kimberly Stowers & Luis Hernandez

Upon hearing the word "library", many students cringe. Others are not so quick to reject the idea of visiting one. For they have realized what a world of fantastic ideas come from such a place. There are not just books and magazines in the Olin Library, but there is a audio-visual room where students can listen to a tape or watch a movie. Also there is a pillow room where one can study while lying in mounds of pillows. "The pillow room provides a comforatable environment where you can catch up on some reading or take a needed nap," said Nathaniel Eberle.

During midterm and final exams, the library is usually filled with students trying to do some last minute studying. As early as eight o'clock in the morning and up to two o'clock in the early morning hours, students are busy at study stations located throughout the building, studying for an exam or doing research for an upcoming project. In some cases, one will find groups of students studying in the basement study rooms or in the huge study area of the library's tower area. These locations provide students with a relaxing and tranquil study environment, far different from the noise and chaos found in the dorms.

Olin Library has also provided many students with access to other library collections at various colleges and universities throughout the state. Library staff members will be glad to assist students in contacting other institutions such as UCF, Stetson, or Eckerd, to see if they have a specific book or article. Through Olin's Interlibrary loan program with other colleges, it has been able to assist many students in getting necessary materials upon reguest.

The Olin Library has many state of the art computer catalogs to assist students in locating materials for their research.

Many students enjoy reading magazines and periodicals during their spare time.

Fox DAY '96

a day to remember

By Luis Hernandez

While some students played Fox Day roulette, others waited patiently for the day to arrive. On the mornin of Monday, April 22, the waiting was over when students sighted the statue of the Fox on Mills Lawn. The bells c Knowles Chapel rang, and by mid-day the campus looked likeca ghost town. Many students headed toward local beaches and othr area attractions for the day. The beaches of Central Florida are always packed with students on Fox Day, and this year was no exception. Kim Stowers said, "Fox Day couldn't have fallen ora better day. I had two exams and a paper due. Besides, the weather was perfect!" As usual, many people headed to Mills Lawn around five o'clock to attend the campus-wide picnic that unites the entire college community. This event brought students, faculty members together to enjoy a barbeque picnic outdoors. Since Fox Day was held during the annual Carnival Latino festival, which is sponsored by LASA, a Mexican mariachi band was on hand to play traditional mariachi music during the picnic. After the picnic winded down, the Fox statue was carried off by facilities management workers and placed in storage until next year. Without a single cloud in the sky, beautiful weather, and a wonderful picnic, Fox Day came to an end for another year.

Before they became a success, Hootie and the Blowfish were a group of college students at the University of South Carolina- Charleston. Our own student band, Gum Wrapper Curb, is heading toward a similar road of stardom. The popular group can be found performing at various local clubs and bars such as the Mill and Sapphire Supper Club. With their recent CD release, the band is quickly gaining notoriety around the Orlando area. Many students boast about the band's success. Sarah Sutton said, "I've heard the band play several times, and I know they will make it big one day. Then I can say I knew them when they were just getting started!"

Here's The Scoop With Student Activities

By Luis Hernandez

Student groups have been a part of campus life since the founding days of the college. Students form groups in order to attract others with similar interests or to educate and inform people about important topics. With over 50 clubs available on campus, Student Activities coordinates a fair every September to make new and old students aware of the various groups and organizations on campus. From All Campus Events to X-Club, student groups and organizations registered with the Office of Student Actvities, are welcome to promote their organization at the fair. With twelve Greek organizations, four student publications, a college radio station, eight cultural groups, and many other interest groups, students who attended the fair had the opportunity to learn about various interest and social groups. Though the student activities fair was unexpectadely interrupted by a passing rain shower, most students discovered the diversity that exists within their college community.

DIVERSITY

LATIN AMERICAN STYLE

By Luis Hernandez

The topic of promoting diversity events on campus has been the goal of many cultural groups. Every year, the Latin American Student Association (LASA) holds a week long festival appropiately named "Carnival Latino," in which they hope to promote a better understanding of the peoples who live in Latin America. This year, LASA decided to sponsored a dance recital at the Mary Jean Mitchell Plaza that showcased the traditional dances and costumes of Panama. While many think of hats and a canal whenever they hear the word Panama, this Central American country has been able to blend its Iberian, Indigneous, and African roots into a visible and vibrant culture. The dancers which performed an audience of students danced to the beat of drums and Spanish and Indian harmonies. Wearing the national costumes of the country, the dancers electrified the audience with their presentation. In addition to this event, LASA also sponsored a guest speaker, a weekend concert, and a movie that all had to do something with the significance of Latin Americans, The funds raised at the concert were donated to benefit rural peasants in Guatemala and the Dominican Republic, who live in dire conditions. The success of Carnival Latino reflects the school's receptive attitude to other world cultures that are different from their own.

The music and dance of the Panamanian dance troupe attracted the attention of many passerbys, including student Monica Bonilla.

The dance troupe's organizer explains to students the significance of the music and national costumes of Panama.

The dance troupe's presentation brought students Valenta Encarnacion, Heather Sapey, Kiomie Johansen, Anne-Marie Puig, Suzy Wong, and Julie Godwin together to learn about the culture of Panama.

Helping Others

By Iara Peng and Kimberly Stowers

Taking part in the college experience is more than late night studying and weekend parties. Our community provided many students on this campus a chance to make a difference is someone else's life. Whether that meant getting up at nine a.m. on a Saturday morning to build a Habitat House, or giving blood at one of the blood drives, students have learned the importance of helping others.

During January, several conscientious students travelled to third world countries in efforts to improve the standard of living in those nations. By building medical centers, our students have not only affected the lives of many people, but have also gained personal rewards. On campus, students have also accepted the invitation to take part in community service. Young children anxiously waited for the annual "Halloween Howl" that groups of students eagerly organized. Luis Hernandez said, "More students should try to get involved with community service. It make you feel great, and benefits everyone involved."

Students have a perfect opportunity to give back to the community by taking part in different service projects. Always remember the saying engraved on one of our campus walls, "Life is for Service."

Many students participated in the AIDS Walk that took place in October. This event helped to raise money for much needed research to find a cure for this deadly disease.

Sophomore Rebecca Wentz paints the face of a local child during Halloween Howl. Many children from west Winter Park come to campus every Halloween to join in the festivities.

Senior Leah Martin takes some of her time to donate blood. The local blood mobile makes seasonal visits to campus in order to help keep blood reserves at a satisfactory level.

Students on a J-Term trip to Guatemala assist in the construction of a medical clinic for the country's poverty stricken Mayan population. The results of the project help to make life easier for many Guatemalans.

Now and Then

Catching up with Friends at Alumni Weekend 199

By Luis Hernandez

After commencement, many graduates lose contact with one another. Whether with a close friend or a fraternity brother, many alumi await their class reunions to catch up with past friends, or to catch them up on news That's why Alumni Weekend is organized every year. The Alumni House and our Student Alumni Association invite Alumni to jo in events that bring students, both past and present, together. This year's Alumni Weekend brought former students together for various receptions, including a concert on Sandspur Field. Almost every class year was represented, and many alumni were pleas with the outcome of the weekend's festivities. "Alumni Weekend would not have been possible without the generous assistance alumni, facultu, and current students. Their help made this year's event a suc- cess," Student Michelle Cicak said after the festivi- ties had ended. As the weekend came to an end, many past alumn said goodbye to the school they had left so many memories behind. While many found the concert and other activities enjoyable, the main thing to remember is that they have never forgotten their alma mater.

"As a freshman, I never planned on becoming too involved at Rollins with campus life. I strictly wanted to pass my classes and graduate with a degree. These plans changed, however, when I became award of the opportunities Rollins has to offer.

During my four years I joined numerous groups while trying to complete my major in the English department. However, my work with the Center for Public Service has been the most rewarding position I have held here. The Center is a terrific resource for finding ways to contribute to the community, and I hope people will continue to take advantage of the great projects CFPS has to offer.

The service projects I encountered on campus were a continuous reminder of the real life issues in our society which are so easily forgotten behind the walls of Rollins College. I believe everyone should volunteer their time at one point in their lives, in one way or another."

First and foremost, it must be recognized that I attribute my strength and success to the Great Spirit, my Native American heritage, and the community of friends and family I belong to for no endeavor is undertaken solely by oneself, but with the seen or unseen support of others.

I am a full-time day student pursuing a bachelors degree in Environmental Studies, Religion, and Anthropology. In 1995, I received the Theodore S. Darrah Award for Synoptic Studies. This year I received the Charles S. Mendell Jr. Scholarship which enabled me to continue my senior studies.

However, I consider my greatest achievements to be my marriage and my spiritual studies in Totemism, the religion of Native Americans. Through my marriage, I have come, once again, to trust and believe in the inherent goodness of human beings. Through my studies in Totemism, under the guidance of my elder Bill Chance of the Eastern Cherokee, I have reconnected with Mother Earth and awakened to me responsibility in preventing as well as ending both human and environmental devastation. Towards that end, I have joined the United Native Americans of Central Florida. We organized Earth Day to held on campus April 20-21. Also, through daily meditation I have begun to overcome many inner obstacles to my own well being and ability to contribute to the world in a healing manner as opposed to contributing to the trends of egoism and hatred that cross boundaries of ethnicity, gender, and even nations.

My most recent accomplishment is the publication of Portraits: A Face For Every Mask. This collection of poetry represents my journey from an abused child to an empowered adult. It is my personal belief that we cannot begin to heal Earth until we first heal ourselves by mending the rifts within our own psyches. Only then as whole beings can we contribute to the betterment of Earth and all her inhabitants be they animals, plants, entire ecosystems, or human beings.

I am Amy WIII and I come to Rollins College from Dunwoody, Georgia. I attended Dunwoody High School, where I played a very active role. I was Student Representative for the Board of Education, Student Government President, Captain of the Tennis Team, Vice-President of National Honor Society, Homecoming Queen, Atlanta Journal Cup winner, among others.

I have continued my active involvement and leadership roles at Rollins. I am a member of Senate and play tennis for the "Tars." Tennis has been a big part of my life since I started playing at seven. Growing up, I was kept busy traveling around Georgia and the South playing tournaments. When deciding which college to attend, tennis played a big part in my decision.

Academics also played a big part in my college choice. I graduated high school with a 3.97 and I was named an honor graduate. I have been able to continue my academic success in college with obtaining a 3.78 the first semester. I am currently in the 3/2 Accelerated Management Program and am majoring in Economics.

The third major part of my college life is the social aspect. I love being around people, and the friends I have made at Rollins are great! I am pledging Kappa Kappa Gamma, and really enjoy hanging out with all the girls in the sorority. Without the great social aspect, college would not be as great as it is!

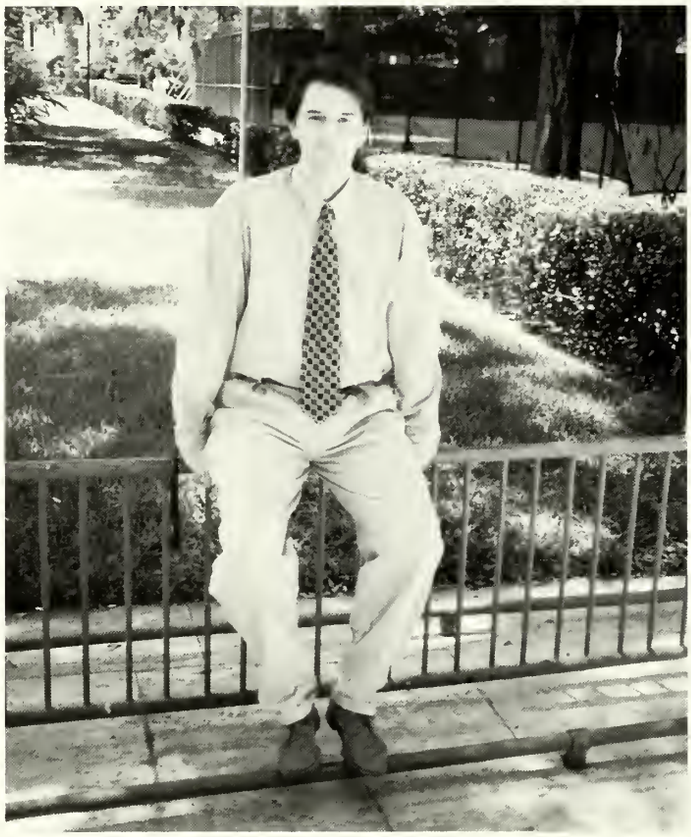
Rollins College was not first on my list when I was deciding where to seek higher education. In fact, Rollins was not on my list at all. I first attended Montclair State College in New Jersey where I studied theatre and communications through their Honors Program.

After a year of college, I became restless and sought to explore possibilities beyond college. I became an employee for the Disney Stores when they were just getting off the ground and, after a short time with the company, I was promoted, becoming the youngest manager in the company.



I learned a great deal from my experience with the Disney Stores, including planning budgets, assessing and responding to personnel problems, merchandising, and guest relations. It was an experience from which I gained much insight, but after three years with the company, I began to feel that I needed to return to college. After leaving Disney, I studied psychology and literature as well as served as a peer health advisor for a year at New York University.

It was at NYU that the thought of becoming a doctor was awakened once again. I realized I needed to find a campus where I could work in partnership with peers and faculty. It was then that I found Rollins. I fell in love with the campus environment the first time I visited and one season later I was studying biology in Bush.

I'm a little older than my peers and have some experience in the business world. I was able to mesh what I learned outside of college with what I learned at Rollins. I consider myself privileged to have had the opportunity to act as the Biology Interest Group's president, helping to expand the campus-wide recycling program. My experiences working as a peer writing consultant at the Writing Center and as a teacher's assistant in the biology department have only permitted me to gain better insight into student needs. Working with the Los Angeles AIDS Project, UCLA Medical Center and the New York AIDS Walk have offered me further understanding of human needs. It is these experiences that have facilitated my becoming an effective peer mentor, helping new students adjust to an unfamiliar environment.

My experiences in the work force and at Rollins have made me a more driven student with much clearer goals than I had when I first entered college. My interests in biology and medicine are not passing. A year long research project in which I worked to isolate and sequence a specific growth factor has served to reinforce my passion for the sciences. Confident that I want to study medicine, I am looking forward to attending medical school after working for a year with the Centers for Diseases Control in Atlanta, Georgia. I will most likely specialize in immunology, focusing on microbial infections as the inspiration I received through my independent study in molecular medical microbiology continues to grow. My experiences at Rollins have taught me that success is found in what we can do for others. I look forward to continuing my efforts to influence the lives of others, in turn enriching my own perceptions of the world.

Being involved in a variety of activities has always been important to me. Personal involvement with people has always given me tremendous satisfaction, especially knowing I have made a difference in another's life.

I feel each one of us is given a talent and what we do with it ultimately defines who we are. I have been fortunate to travel extensively throughout the world to such places as Indonesia, Hong Kong, Singapore, Egypt, Germany, Turkey, India, England and Greece. I have seen people who are the same yet carry their own uniqueness. These adventures have given me the kind of insight into people and places that one cannot learn in a classroom.

In addition to my travels, I have had the opportunity to work with various relief organizations such as Indian Relief Fund and Benevolence International. These adventures not only provided me with invaluable education, but they developed within me an openness to new ideas, a strong belief in my own principles, and a sincere compassion for others.

Challenging oneself makes a person stronger and it provides a great deal of satisfaction when successful. In addition to being a Biology major, I am currently president of Muslim Students' Association, a Biology teaching assistant, as well as secretary of Biology Interest Group. My fascination with science has been strengthened with my involvement in ground-breaking cancer research for the past two years. Being involved with different campus organizations including Sandspur, ODK, and CAC has given me the opportunity to meet people committed to service and leadership. My hobbies include photography, art (although I haven't had much time to indulge in it), reading and rollerblading.

LUIS HERNANDEZ

Wow, Its over. Im saying this minutes after finishing 252 pages almost entirely by myself. Anyway, let me get to what I have to say. First of all I will like to thank the four people who made this book a reality when it seem that I was in the most dismal of times. Jean Henry, Iara Peng, Linda Sitek, and Drew Williams, you guys are the best! If it was not for your assistance and your creative energies, no one would have a copy of this book in their hands now. This book is dedicated to the four of you! Todd B.: Crabby you still are, yet you're still a great friend. By the way what happened to that %$#@*& Simpsons tape? Hope you try to find some time in '96-'97 to spend more time with your friends of '94-'95. Lil' Brian: MIA. Where the hell are you? I still remember when you got an eyeful of Veronica at the Leadership Retreat, and who can't forget that weekend with Kiet, Kim, Vanessa. The worst part of that night was when our party was crashed by Mama (aka Martha Dumptruck, aka Heavy D). Kiet: Tuan? Ok, enough about that. Hope that everything goes well for you in Chicago. Matt W.: MA!. Tomas: My favorite Irish friend! Hanging out with you DB, and Eric M. was the best (especially when you are drunk)! DB: MA!, runs to ABC, I'll see you in Mahopac very soon! Melanson: Not another beer! really I'm trying to cut back. Yolaine: I'm working on my French. Be careful with your hand next time. Say hi to Ben. Leigh: We definately had a great time in Vargas' class. "Wanna break a wave dude?". Annie: From LASA treasurer to SGA comptroller, Wow! Hanging out with you at the house with Danitza on weekends was great! Linda Sitek: Koo Bloo Koo Aid in Skoo. "So L.T. is going to University of Miami Law School? Really? That was the alma mater of Unfrozen Caveman Lawyer, so I guess they have really easy admission standards. The legal world must be quaking in their pants." I miss Sensei very much. She gave so much personality to the '95 edition, and we can't forget Evans! Evans! Evans! Sharon: "Charon, shockolit ship cookies are avaible at the chopping mall." We survive POL 321! Cherry Surplees and Bacardi are a great mix. Boylan: "BUN IN THE OVEN!", You're the best "Big Red!". Keep in touch. Alyssa: Aruba defiantely rules. "Remember Taryn lost because of a conspiracy between Bonaire and Curacao!" Are you still on America On Line? I told you that you will be an addict in days. No more gifs, or else your computer's memory will explode! Best rollerblader in town. I'll see you in Oranjestad some day.. Suzy: No more 40+ single space papers for Valdes. No more Beans Food either!

Leslie: More fun times just like the time at the Super Tyrone Concert! Damien: My partner in crime. To you I leave you my first novel when it is published. Kenny B. I would have put your picture on my page but you're on so many so far. Carlos: Another night just like the first time we met at the Rio Bravo. Gonna miss your crabby moods also! Just dont touch my CD's. Michelle S-R: Gonna miss you at Elizabeth. We are free from the crookstore. Yes you heard me right! Lets have more fun times like that night at Rio Bravo. Jean Henry: Best Herff Jones rep on this earth. Hope your '96-'97 is a good year for you! You're the best Jean! Thanks for everything! Ruth: You' are great! Gonna miss you at student activities. Blake, Maureen, Saif, Gloria, Penny, Melissa, and Ray: Thanks for making Student Activities such a great office. Anthro/ LACA Dept.: Thanks for all your help guys!

Ann, Jessica, and the rest of Phi Mu: Thanks for having your doors open to me, and Stiskin, and Trevor! Pascale: I though I was hallucinating in the fall when I saw you in all my classes that first day of classes. We had the same schedule, Deja Vu, huh? Valenta: Don't worry, I'll be there to help you with any problems with your computer. Hernan, Brad, Bart, Zane, and Blake: Run, for you are free as the wind and free from Valdes courses. Run faster than Mexican water through a first time tourist. Run! Kappa Delta: Great bunch of girls. I promise no more photos on your floor. Campus Saftey & Ernie: Thanks for all your help this year! Mail Clerks: Thanks for handling the bulks of incoming and outgoing mail that I received and send. Shelby: I told you I was going to print that photo! Sonia: Thanks for everything. I love ya! Jeannette: When are you coming back? Angela: Best neighbor at Elizabeth! Got to show me how to make a Bahama Mama. Vanessa G & Kim G.: You guys were the best during the leadership retreat. More beer runs to sevies! So what's Victoria's Secret? Vanessa I heard Mambo King has a crush on you. "Ju know babee!" Jen Thompson: A great person and human being, You are simply great. Gonna miss you! Penelope, Alisa, and Stacy: Thanks for making the third floor a great place to

Satisfaction

As you look back on yesterday, may your memories be warm.
As you enjoy today,
may your heart be filled with happiness.
As you look ahead to tomorrow,
may your fondest hopes and dreams come true.

Life to you, Kimberly, is a Beautiful Beach...over which these feet will cross...May the Sand be smooth as Silk, never a stone too big to thwart your way...May the Wind be going your way...and your burden be light...And if the wind changes the load heavy and stones appear...May the Lord lead the way through the stormy times and help carry the load...Go forth to do his work and may all who meet you enjoy the beauty you hold in your heart and the gifts you Have to Offer!

All Our Love,

God Bless You!
Mom, Dad, Rich & Todd

We are so proud of you!

The Bannon's

In honor of Matt Pfohl

There is a funny old saying, one that says,
If you don't ride a bicycle,
you don't fall off!"
What it meansto say, of course, is if you do put a lot of energy into something, you are bound to make mistakes;
and if you take a lot of risks,
you are bound to tumble here and there.
But remember this: that if you persist,
you will arrive at the destination of your choice.
And if you do occasionally fall in the process, you'll learn much more than if you don't.
So try, and so, and discover all that you can be.
And take me with you...
in spirit, as you go,
so you'll know that I'll always be beside you wishing for nothing but the best.

Congratulations
Mom, Dad and famil

Eat mangoes naked. Keep toys in the bathtub. Spin yourself*dizzy.* Hang upside down. Follow a child. Celebrate an old person. Send a love letter to yourself. BE ADVANCED. Try endearing. invent new ways to love. transform negatives. Delight someone. wear pajamas to a drive in movie. Allow yourself to feel rich without money. Be who you truly are and the money will follow.
